§B. Large Projects in Preparation:

With Up-Lifted Hands: The Akkadian Shuila-Prayers. A collection of at least 60 shuila-prayers in Akkadian transliteration and English translation for the Society of Biblical Literature’s Writings from the Ancient World series, edited by Theodore Lewis (Johns Hopkins University). The proposal was accepted September 5, 2017.

A Complete Edition of Akkadian Shuila-Prayers (electronic and print); long-term project. See my “Corpus of Akkadian Shuila-Prayers Online” at <http://shuilas.org/catalog.html>. 269 of 338 tablets in the project are transliterated and translated. Many of these will be published in print in the book With Up-Lifted Hands (see above). I do all the coding on this digital humanities site.

“Akkadian Prayer Miscellany,” a digital repository of various Akkadian prayers—in transliteration and translation—that I am working on. <http://akkpm.org/index.html>. I have seventeen texts posted so far. Several of these have either been the basis for an article (see below, e.g., “Narrating for Nabû” and “The Prayer of Ashurnasirpal I to Ishtar”) or will be soon. I do all the coding on this digital humanities site.

I Call on You from Afar: Akkadian Prayers in Interdisciplinary Perspective. A monograph that illustrates the interpretive value of various methodological approaches as applied to a variety of Akkadian prayers.
